

Inklings Forever: Published Colloquium Proceedings 1997-2016

---

Volume 10 A Collection of Essays Presented at the Tenth Frances White Ewbank Colloquium on C.S. Lewis & Friends

---

Article 100

6-5-2016

Dog City After Dark After reading The Great Divorce

Rick Hill

Follow this and additional works at: https://pillars.taylor.edu/inklings\_forever

Part of the English Language and Literature Commons, History Commons, Philosophy Commons, and the Religion Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Hill, Rick (2016) "Dog City After Dark After reading The Great Divorce," Inklings Forever: Published Colloquium Proceedings 1997-2016: Vol. 10 , Article 100.

Available at: https://pillars.taylor.edu/inklings\_forever/vol10/iss1/100

This Essay is brought to you for free and open access by the Center for the Study of C.S. Lewis & Friends at Pillars at Taylor University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Inklings Forever: Published Colloquium Proceedings 1997-2016 by an authorized editor of Pillars at Taylor University. For more information, please contact pillars@taylor.edu.

---

Dog City After Dark After reading The Great Divorce

Cover Page Footnote

Revised for the conference. Original version published in Christianity and Literature, Winter 2000. Also anthologized in Christianity and Literature's Best of Fifty Years issue. 2001 and Imago Dei: Poems from Christianity and Literature Abilene Christian University Press 2012.

DOG CITY AFTER DARK

After reading The Great Divorce

by Rick Hill

Everybody has a dog in my neighborhood, and all the dogs are pacing sad ruts around their junk-lumber doghouses.

And after dark the dogs bark warnings, inquiries—bark insults and defiance till morning, bark short-chain, short-chain, all night long.

Listen, dogs, I understand you can't articulate your more complicated longings,
and I realize you're sick of those piles that ring
the end of your lonesome tether.

But we all have to live in this little gray town
Let's try to wag with it, dogs. Let's curb our incessant yipping, heel our pathetic whine

when the master draws near but then is seemingly yanked back to his easy chair in the big house.
And let's face it, dogs:

whatever we're trying to get across, all the rest hear is barking, snarling, irritating, chain rattling, growl bark growl
just dog noise.

So snuffle down now, dogs. Watch the moon sink and the stars dim. The world is pausing, steeling itself for morning.

We'll all have our day, brothers, but no one is going to unhook anyone—not this long tonight, oh love, not just yet.

(Revised for the conference. Original version published in Christianity and Literature, Winter 2000. Also anthologized in Christianity and Literature's Best of Fifty Years issue.
2001 and Imago Dei: Poems from Christianity and Literature, Abilene Christian University Press 2012)